ICT Regulation: Understanding the Big Picture of ICTs for Development

06 - 10 October 2014
London, UK

Overview

Board members of telecommunications regulatory authorities across the Commonwealth often express a wish to understand more about the wider context within which telecommunications regulation take place so that they can be better placed to undertake their roles. The Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation is delivering a five-day course at its London headquarters twice a year for its member organisations and others to provide an introduction to the use of information and communication technologies for development (ICT4D), focusing especially on the role of regulatory authorities

Tuesday 7 Oct 14	Setting the ICT4D Scene
09.30	Recap from previous day and introduction to policy issues			Professor Tim Unwin, Secretary-General, Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation
10.00	The role of ICTs in development – the big picture	This session explores the bigger picture and the role of ICTs in development, from their potential contribution to economic growth, to their role in education and health. There is nevertheless evidence that ICT “accelerators” tend to increase existing inequalities in society rather than reduce them, unless very careful policies are in place to ensure that the interests of the poorest and most marginalised are served. This is a key role for regulators.	This session will focus on the impacts of ICT4D.	Professor Tim Unwin, Secretary-General, Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation
11.00	Group photograph, Refreshments and networking

11.30	Group exercise: Key ICT4D agendas and challenges faced by participants in their countries	This session requires participants to highlight the main ICT4D agendas in their countries, and what they think are the key challenges that they face in their roles. The outcomes will be used to shape some of the discussions that follow over the course duration.	These outcomes will be used to shape subsequent discussions, with answers being given on the last day	Professor Tim Unwin, Secretary-General, Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation
12.00	The relationships between the board and the executive committee	What is the purpose of 'governance'? What does 'good' governance mean? What about the relationship between the board and the executive team? The Chair and the Chief Executive Officer? How can board members help ensure they are effective?	This session will be an opportunity to discuss these questions and others delegates would like to raise.	Christopher Banks CBE, Chair, Public Chairs' Forum
13.00	Lunch		Buffet lunch in CTO premises
14.00	Influencing global decisions on ICTs – the role of international organisations (ITU Study Groups, and CIG) and fora (WSIS, WCIT, TDAG, WTDC, CTO, ICANN, GAC, and IGF)	This session describes the international framework and agendas for ICTs; the key organisations involved; and behind-the-scenes decisions on issues such as standards or migration from analogue to digital broadcasting. Technical, political and economic drivers at an international level as discussed, drawing parallels with other sectors.		Marcel Belingue, Senior Manager, Head of Membership & Communications, Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation
15:00	Postal Regulation			Steve Hannon, Non-Executive Director of Guernsey Post Ltd and current elected chair of Commonwealth Conference of Postal Administrators
15.30	Cyberspace - Internet	Cyberspace encompasses the internet, mobile and fixed -line access, all the networked machine-to-machine communications and other networked communications that are beyond the World Wide Web and the content that runs through it. Cyberspace provides unparalleled access, helping us to bridge the digital divide while influencing every aspect of our economic and social activities. It is expected to grow from 2 billion to 4 billion users by 2020, many in developing countries. The way we govern cyberspace, ensure the security of the network, content and users and leverage it for socio-economic growth is a key challenge faced by many policymakers and regulators.	This session will look into cyberspace governance and leveraging it for socioeconomic growth.	Lasantha De Alwis, Director/Head of Operations Department & Corporate Secretary, Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation

16:00	Afternoon refreshments and networking
16.30	Consumer issues and management	In a highly competitive and fast-moving environment such as the ICT sector, minimising liability while maximising profitability and shareholder value often takes precedence on end-users' interests, especially consumers.	This session reviews the rationale for consumer protection in different market scenarios, and investigating methods such as consumer complaints, unfair practices, and network performance data will be discussed.	Marcel Belingue, Senior Manager, Head of Membership & Communications, Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation
17.00	Close of day two
19.30	Dinner hosted by CTO		In central London
22.00	Return to accommodation
Wednesday 8 Oct 2014	Regulation in Practice
09.30	Recap from previous day			Marcel Belingue, Senior Manager, Head of Membership & Communications, Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation
10:00	Case study - Ofcom	Introduction to Ofcom and its approach to regulation.		Chris Woolford, Director of Spectrum and International Policy, Ofcom
11.00	Morning refreshments and networking
11.30	Case study: Universal service and access funds: For and against key political and social stakeholders	Universal service and access funds have a lot to offer, the practical reality is often that their use is fraught with difficulties and allegations of misappropriation of funds. This session will conclude with a discussion of possible alternative models to achieve universal access and service.	This session explores the various arguments in favour of and against the use of universal service funds seeking to ensure that digital technologies are used as extensively as possible, particularly by poor and marginalised communities	Professor Tim Unwin, Secretary-General, Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation

THE COURSE

The Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation has created this programme in response to requests from its members. Each course will have between 20 and 25 participants, drawn from the boards of regulatory authorities in Commonwealth countries and beyond.

Key features of the course:

- Delivered by leading experts with real practical knowledge of telecommunications regulation;
- Highly interactive and delivered in a supportive atmosphere, enabling participants to ask the questions that they really want to have answers to;
- Includes visits to relevant organisations and companies in the UK;
- Flexible course content that can be adapted to the needs of participating organisations; and
- Participants will become part of an alumni network that is being specially created for delegates on the programme, through which they can continue to discuss aspects of regulation with their peers.

By participating in the course, delegates will:

- Understand the wider context of ICT for development within which ICT regulation operates;
- Understand the main issues facing boards of telecommunications regulatory authorities, and the choices they will have to make;
- Gain knowledge of the sources of information available to assist them;
- Provide opportunity to share experiences and challenges faced by board members in other Commonwealth countries and beyond; and
- Becoming a member of the CTO's regulatory board alumni network

FACILITATOR PROFILES

Professor Tim Unwin

Professor Tim Unwin was appointed Secretary General of the Commonwealth Telecommunications Organisation (CTO) in September 2011, and he also leads the CTO's activities on ICTs for people with disabilities and ICTs in education, focusing particularly on skills development and entrepreneurship. He serves on the ITU's m-Powering Development Advisory Board, as a member of the Advisory Council of the Alliance for Affordable Internet, as a Member of the UK Department for International Development's Digital Advisory Panel, and on the International Advisory Board of the International Multilateral Partnership Against Cyber Threats, (IMPACT). He has also been Chair of the Commonwealth Scholarship Commission since 2009, and a Commissioner since 2004. His continuing academic roles include his role as UNESCO Chair in ICT4D and Emeritus Professor of Geography at Royal Holloway, University of London, as well as Honorary Professor at Lanzhou University in China. He has written or edited 15 books and more than 200 academic papers and chapters, many of which focus on the use of technology in development practices. His latest edited book, Information and Communication Technologies for Development, was published by Cambridge University Press in 2009.

David Hemingway

David Hemingway is Senior Spectrum Manager for the BBC in London. Since joining the BBC in 1988, he worked in the Transmission Projects department before transferring to the Spectrum Planning Group in 2001. Since then, he has worked on the UK's TV digital switchover project, planning a transmitter network to cover the whole UK and introducing the world's first DVB-T2 High Definition transmission network, while at the same time delivering a digital dividend suitable for mobile broadband services.

As well as being part of the BBC's spectrum planning team working with the UK Government, Ofcom and other stakeholders on plans for switchover to digital radio and investigating options for further UHF spectrum release, since June this year, he has been Chairman of the EBU's Spectrum Management and Regulation group.
